Bass Clef ANSWERS

The bass clef is also called the F Clef (because the 2 dots are around the line where F is placed). This clef is used for the cello, double bass, bass guitar, trombone, tuba and baritone and bass voices. Tenor voice is written in bass clef when the tenor and bass are written on the same staff. Bass clef is the bottom clef in the grand staff for keyboard instruments. The double bass and electric bass sound an octave lower than the written pitch.
